Constables Guard Norwich Entrances

Town Places Men at Yantic, East Great Plain and Trading Cove—Auto Party Turned Back by Officers Guard—Another Family to be Quarantined.

Bright and early Sunday morning, the rigid exclusion measures against infantile paralysis or its possibilities determined on by city and town of Norwich went into effect. They practically, Norwich was as well protected against children carrying the disease as the French against Teutons at Verdun.

Approach were blocked save by cross lots and very devious other routes to the city. The police were on duty during the day, one was quite refused admission, and another was admitted to submit to a quarantine this morning.

The selectmen, in carrying out their work of cooperation with the city, had the special line of defense formed at their stations Sunday morning. Big John Donovan, who has been doing excellent work in the past, was on duty over a week in turning back children destined for Norwich from New York and the other diseased centers, was called back over from New York, and placed as patrol at the line at Trading Cove, on the New London road.

Another reason why he feels justified in his position is the fact that the city of Norwich is the fact that it is strongly probable that children bring it to the city. It is a fact that the Colchester case was one of this kind as visitors from Brooklyn to Colchester are reported to have brought it to the city.

The situation in New London remains unchanged. No new cases of the disease have been reported out of town, have been reported to the health department and the exclusion orders continue to keep children out of London from the infected districts.

There were two children on the street at the Broadway Congregational church, but they were not admitted to this city. One was bound for Putnam and the other was going to Westport. The children were taken away from them permission to proceed.

Two of the victims of the disease at the Congregational church of Memorial hospital are seriously ill. They are Vito Antonio from Newark and Maria Ellis from Montville. Both have positive cases of the disease and the paralysis is general. The other patients are reported normal.

NEW YORK YACHT CLUB STARTS CRUISE TOMORROW

Big Fleet is Due in New London on Thursday.

That annual fixture in the yachting world which invariably brings together the finest squadron of pleasure and racing craft in this country, the New York Yacht club cruise, starts tomorrow when the squadron will rendezvous in Hempstead harbor off the coast of New York.

The itinerary of the cruise this year, as outlined in general order No. 2, issued by Commodore George F. Baker, Jr., is unusual and promises to be most interesting, with one port of call, which is a bay of call, Fort Pond Bay, where the yachtsmen are likely to remain on board and follow the custom of years ago of visiting from one yacht to another, and the other destination, on Buzzards Bay, the new port of call in New York Yacht club
